I can't believe Del Rey spent half a million dollars on this when they could have spent half a million dollars on anything else. Sorry not sorry.

The day after this was brought to their editor's attention, half the accounts vanished. Also this was tweeted:

<https://twitter.com/caitcorrain/status/1732157445378818174?s=46&t=dEx0Tv3syomcpqJrsQjjZw>

As if the fake reviews on their book were 1 stars instead of 5 stars.

They're going to claim a "friend" did it in their name with screenshots of a conversation as proof but that doesn't explain how

1. This has been going on since April
2. The conversation is timestamped the evening of Dec 5 but half the accounts were already deleted in the morning after this behavior was brought to their editor's attention
3. Why they didn't reach out to the authors impacted immediately because if they were truly innocent surely they'd clear that up right away
4. Why a Goodreads account confirmed to be theirs upvoted their book on the same ~37 obscure lists the fake accounts did
